Favorite Memory I have always liked the "drag races" we had against other ships. Also the "war games" in the Med where we used all means necessary to hide from our adversaries. The travel to Europe and to the Caribbean when we first started to go. For the most part, I felt we had a pretty tight knit engineering department. The rule of, if the beard wasn't on your I D it's gotta come off. I had my new I D made on the JFK, they just cut out the picture and put it on the new ID. The Chief Master-at-Arms was fit to be tied.
Worst Memory As water king over flowing tanks and the clean up, Cleaning the evaporators. The death of BT1 Foote. The ensign who made me move the portable water hose from one hydrant to another in the rain because water was leaking out of the hydrant flange. He was the densest dumbest man I have ever met because he thought he was all that and a bag of chips when in fact he was a few fries short of a happy meal and did know it.

Favorite Memory When we left off the Med I believe it was in 1965 or 1966 a few of our officers extended for the cruise since we were going into the Red Sea. Before we go there someone had a fake message extended all reserves additional six months. Let me tell you all reserves had stiff necks and tight jaws when they either read it or heard it. It really got stopped as soon as it got started. Since six fleet commander saw with in tops of about five minutes. Somehow or somewhere it got destroyed.
